Science Projects and Cooking

Every week we do a science project and a cooking activity. We want to make sure that they enjoy the activities as well as learn, so we ask them what things they would find fun to do. We would also like to ask parents, are there any science projects or healthy(ish) foods you think the children would like to make?

Classroom

To help each child in the classroom learn and be successful we are going to try splitting the class into two groups for the morning. They will all engage in the same activities, just at separate times and will end up with more outdoor time as well. This will also allow for more individualized time on activities like Handwriting Without Tears. If you have any questions, please see Ms. Jasmine or Ms. Vanessa.

FYI

Spring is here and with it warmer temperatures, which means sunscreen time. We are asking that parents start bringing in sunscreen now in case we get the odd unseasonably hot afternoon. Make sure your child's name is on the bottle.

Also, please make sure your child has at least two changes of clothes in their cubbies, all of which are labeled with their name or at least initials.

Thank you!
